It's beginning to look a lot like winter in the art room.

Mrs. B's first grade class make ornaments for the Madison's Capitol Christmas tree. The theme this year was Wisconsin Dairyland, so students used oil pastels, paper, and googly eyes to make cows.

Second grade made winter trees using black paper to construct the organic shapes of a tree and water color to set the scene. Gold and silver sharpies were added for details, making their art resemble that of Gustave Klimt.

Kindergartener's made a collage with paint, paper, and crayons to build their snowmen.

Third and fourth graders have been busy designing artwork for their concert. Their work was inspired by the songs they will be singing.
